Decker Anstrom Joins National Environmental Education Foundation Board of Trustees

WASHINGTON—The National Environmental Education Foundation (NEEF) this month welcomed its newest board member, Decker Anstrom.

Anstrom, who was appointed by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lisa P. Jackson, has a distinguished career in both business and public service. He serves on the Board of Directors of Comcast Corporation and recently retired as president of Landmark Communications. He also serves on the boards of nonprofits.

“Decker Anstrom brings to the board a broad array of expertise, from his current leadership at Comcast to his work in the public sector at the White House,” said Diane Wood, NEEF’s president. “The entire organization will benefit from his passion and commitment to environmental education and NEEF’s important work.”

Growing up in a family of teachers, Anstrom said he was impressed with the foundation’s commitment to science-based, nonpartisan and life-long environmental education.

“NEEF’s innovative, objective educational programs build awareness of and foster solutions for major environmental issues that represent some of this century’s most critical challenges,” Anstrom said. “I am enthusiastic to join this board as NEEF continues to create innovative programs and engages Americans in environmental learning.”

Anstrom joins a distinguished group from the fields of academia, government, business and nonprofits as members of NEEF’s Board of Trustees.

Knowledge to Live By

The National Environmental Education Foundation (NEEF) provides knowledge to trusted professionals who, with their credibility, amplify messages to national audiences to solve everyday environmental problems. Together, we generate lasting positive change.

NEEF partners with professionals in health, education, media, business and public land management to promote daily actions for helping people protect and enjoy the environment. Through our primary programs -- Classroom Earth, National Public Lands Day, National Environmental Education Week, Business and Environment, Earth Gauge® and Health & Environment -- we offer Americans knowledge to live by.
